

5,000 ATTEND FARMERS' PICNIC; SAGE TELLS OF STATE'S PROBLEMS

Picnickers Quickly Ate Up 60 Gallons of Ice Cream—
Fordson Won Tractor Contest and Uster Farmers
Proved Better Ball Players Than Orange Men—
Kilpatrick Discusses Milk Question.

The Uster county farmer again demonstrated his importance as a permanent institution by his attendance at the annual picnic given under the auspices of the Uster County Farm and Home Bureau at the Wynkoop farm at Old Hurley on Wednesday, when he turned out with his family to the number of about five thousand, making the picnic-trip in about one thousand automobiles which he owns and operates himself.

The Uster county farmer listened to two excellent speeches, ate his basket luncheon with his family, talked politics with his neighbor, watched an interesting demonstration between a gasoline and a kerosene burning tractor, played baseball with his Orange county neighbor, whom he beat by a score of 6 to 2, and altogether enjoyed a most delightful outing whose only drawback was a shortage of ice cream for about half an hour during the afternoon. But when sixty gallons of ice cream had been ordered as a sufficient supply, can anybody be blamed for failing to foresee an ice cream shortage? For who knew that whether conditions would be so ideal? Or who could foretell that the Uster county farmer and his family to the number of five thousand would take advantage of the outing for whose success the Uster County Farm and Home Bureau is responsible.

At the close of the outing, the Uster county farmer again pledged himself to the hearty and unstinted support of the bureau. And meantime he wondered why everybody in the county should not hasten to support the bureau in every way, and was thankful that he had taken advantage of the opportunity to help it along in its work. And hundreds of his city neighbors from Kingston shared his wonderment and thankfulness. Is there anybody, he asked, who is opposed to the Uster County Farm and Home Bureau?

Courtesy Appreciated.

Through the courtesy of William A. Warren, the farmers' picnic was held on that part of the Wynkoop farm along the mountain road which formerly formed a part of the old Peter Crisp farm, which the late James D. Wynkoop acquired many years ago. The field devoted to the picnic contains about one hundred acres, on two sides of which are second growth trees and underbrush, which form a charming setting for any kind of public event. Beneath the shadow of the Hurley mountains, the picnickers felt the unrestrained joy of neighborliness and enjoyed to the full the pleasures provided by the bureau and its supporters. Mr. Warren's courtesy was appreciated fully.

The Tractor Demonstration.

The tractor demonstration, which proved most interesting to hundreds of the farmers, began shortly after 12 o'clock, when a kerosene burning tractor, manufactured by the International Harvester Company, and a Fordson tractor, manufactured by the company which made Henry Ford wealthy, started on two separate acres of flat land which had been carefully staked out. Both tractors were operated by expert demonstrators. Both ploughed a furrow four inches wide and about eight inches deep.

The result of the demonstration was in favor of the Fordson. The result was:

Fordson—1 hour and 45 minutes.
Gasoline consumed, 2 1/2 gallons.
International—1 hour and 47 minutes.
Kerosene consumed, 4 1/4 gallons.

Community Song.

At 1 o'clock a community song was conducted at the speakers' stand by Harry M. Eggen of Accord. Prior to the community song, several selections were rendered by the Citizens Band under the leadership of Harry M. Eggen, in a most satisfactory manner, and Bruce M. Kilpatrick sang several selections which were received with appreciative applause.

Mr. Eggen put plenty of "pep" in the singing and some had several hundred people singing in a manner that would put to shame many a chorus which possesses a less talented leader.

The Speeches.

The speaking began at 2 o'clock. The speakers before Senator Henry M. Sage of Albany and Bruce M. Kilpatrick, treasurer of the Dairyman's League.

The speakers were introduced by Mr. Eggen.

Senator Sage received a rapturous welcome. He said in part:

"I have the misfortune myself to be also connected in the business of farming. Some years ago, you may recall, there was a movement on foot to stop farming at Kingston. When I was a boy, I believe you'll never forget the name of the place of New York where every farmer, every boy is a farmer. (Laughter.)"

For speaking so bravely, one of the incalculable years after year to political conservatism where everybody says we must have a good farmers' block in the party platform. Then we get the farmers on the back and

WOMEN'S PART OF HURLEY PICNIC

The fact that the first tent of the Home Bureau part of the Farm Bureau picnic exhibit was the Rest Tent, did not at all signify that the women of Uster county are a tired lot of women. It simply showed the forethought of the Home Bureau management, for note you, we have come to the day when what interests Mr. Farmer interests Mrs. Farmer and what interests Mrs. Farmer interests her husband, because both are now making a happy home success of farming. On the whole it might have been a better idea to have named this the "Stop a Minute Tent," for really that was about all that anyone did there was so much of interest outside.

In the next tent, Miss Stuart, the efficient Home Bureau manager, had arranged one of those remarkable exhibits which go to prove what a surprising amount of other food is necessary to provide the human body with the same amount of lime, or tissue building material, or energy providing fuel as that which one can get from a glass of milk. Then there was to be seen the pressure cookers, the iceless refrigerators, the fireless cookers, as well as cans of most delicious looking fruit and vegetables done up according to the latest, most approved and least expensive methods. Moreover, members of the Home Bureau, competent to explain the devices and methods were most gracious in their willingness to serve all those who had questions to ask or appeared to be in any way interested. And there was, in connection with this exhibit some very clever posters.

Then there was the tent wherein was to be found the collection of remodeled clothing, millinery, etc., which must have sent shivers up and down the back of that old graffer, Mr. High-Cost-of-Living.

At the big lunch tent the exhibit was "to eat" rather than things. So many hungry folks you never saw. And hungry in so many different ways. And all of them quickly satisfied with the many good things offered by the women of the Home Bureau, and that in a most attractive way. No matter how tired and hungry anyone looked when they entered where the sign read "In," they came "Out" looking happy, smiling and refreshed.

E. Lyons of Milton had an exhibit of four or five beautiful Beighthimer apples that would have brought the Home Bureau a fortune in "guesses" if the lid were not so tightly clamped on even that form of gambling, for everyone wanted to "heft" the apples and the guesses ranged all the way by easy guesses from a half pound to a pound apiece. There were also delicious pears, plums and apples of more nearly what one might call "the common garden variety."

And then the bar! With a menu, "Holstein High Ball," "Guinness Fix," "Carnation Julep," to bring tears of tender recollection to many a man of yesterday but comfort to the hungry "tummy" of boy or man, girls or woman yesterday.

AT THE THEATRES.

"The Wanderer" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" Here Tonight.

One of the classics of English literature, Stevenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," has been translated to the screen as a Paramount Art-craft picture and will be shown at Keeney's tonight, Friday and Saturday. In the role of the unfortunate Dr. Jekyll, John Barrymore is declared to give one of the most remarkable performances of his career.

At the Auditorium tonight Claire Whitney in "Mothers of Men," is a pre-war story of France and will show many scenes where our own boys have been returned from. It is a stirring story of mother love. Also programmed a Ray Bee western drama, "The Feud at Beaver Creek."

Students of the Bible will find one of its most interesting narratives set forth in concrete terms in "The Wanderer" which will be presented at the Opera House tonight. The plot of "The Wanderer" deals with a well-known parable of the Prodigal Son, the opening scene is like a picture. It shows a country home near Hebron, a village not far from Jerusalem, about one thousand years before Christ. It is the home of Jem, a man of means, a patriarch and a wise man. The picture is oriental in every respect and brings to the mind at once, the vine and fig tree, the sheep and the goats and the asses of the Bible.

In this setting Jem, the younger son, who has been coming with a gambler and wastrel from Jerusalem arrives, petulant and resentful. He has heard the call of the great city, and he begs his mother to get him his portion that he may go away and see the world. His mother, who knows his frailties and thinks his life are a bit too full and too rounded, and his hair too long for him to succeed in the big city, she reminds and remonstrates with him not to leave her but the boy will not listen. A story true of today as of yore.

Another Session Loomed.

The sixth session of the big dry dock under construction at the Island Dock shipyard was successfully launched about 2 30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The remaining two sessions are rapidly nearing completion. All six sections built and launched are berthed in the Railroad creek alongside the shipyard dock.

An Arrived Party.

Mr. Hilda Moore has an arrival party on Friday in Manhattan's window on Broadway that is attracting much attention. It is a window scene with a magnificent display of the "arrived" party. The picture was painted by Miss Moore several years ago.

Against Misrepresentation.

The following resolution was offered by James V. Simpson of this city, at the suggestion of Mayor Canfield, who is chairman of the committee of the New York State Mayors' Association which investigated the matter of misrepresentation in motion pictures recently, and was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the preservation of order and protection of property and the safety of the citizens of our cities depend upon the effectiveness of the police departments of such respective cities; and

Whereas, their effectiveness depend partially upon the estimation of respect in which they are regarded and the recognition of lawful authority entertained by the people toward them; and

Whereas, the present manner of representing the policemen in motion pictures is often in exaggerated and distorted form and in such manner as to hold them up to ridicule and derision and to discount their proper sphere of influence for the maintenance of the law;

Be it resolved, by this, the State Patrolmen's Association, representing the patrolmen of the state of New York, that we deplore this disrespectful manner of representation of policemen in motion pictures, and that the National Association of Motion Picture Producers and the producers thereof be urged to treat policemen in pictures in a proper and respectful manner; and that the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures be urged to exercise a more rigid and severe censorship as to pictures burlesquing or misrepresenting officers of the law; and

Be it further resolved, that the secretary of this association, communicate with said National Association and said National Board and transmit a copy of this resolution to each of them and also to other motion picture producers.

If the school at home has not good facilities for educating the children, the farmer is naturally going to move to the city and this condition will continue unless and until farming is made profitable and attractive.

Believes in Education.
"I know that there is a strong drift away from the farm and toward the cities, and one reason is, because there are usually school facilities in the cities and the farmer of today wants his children to have a good education because he realizes that a good education is the basis of success everywhere, in every line. If the school at home has not good facilities for educating the children, the farmer is naturally going to move to the city and this condition will continue unless and until farming is made profitable and attractive.

Both tractors were operated by expert demonstrators. Both ploughed a furrow four feet wide and about eight inches deep.

Why State Spends More.
"Now just a word about state expenditures. In 1890 they amounted to 12 million dollars in New York state. In 1920 they amounted to 142 million dollars. In thirty years state expenditures have been more than multiplied by ten. Originally the government of this state was merely a government which consisted of the legislative branch, the governor and the legislative branch. That was the condition thirty years ago, but since that time the state has done many things.

LABOR DAY EVENTS AT Y. M. C. A. CAMP

Special Buses to Be Run and Kingston People Are Invited to Celebrate Holiday at Camp Near Glenford.

The Y. M. C. A. is planning all-day events at its camp on Glenford hillside Monday, September 6th. This is Labor Day and many people are at liberty to make this a day of outing. An invitation is extended to all Kingston people to visit his camp some time during the day or evening. It's an easy trip to make by auto only taking thirty minutes from Kingston. It is located on the right hand side of the reservoir just above the Glenford church. The white tents can be easily seen from the roadway. Take the road at the right of the church and then the next left and in short order you arrive at camp. Scores of people have already motored to this delightful spot and Monday is the opportune time for many people to enjoy the privileges this camp has to offer. Outdoor games suitable to occasion for young and old, boys and girls, are being arranged by the employed officers of the association. Already business men with their families have accepted this invitation and in some cases they have volunteered to take others with them who have not a car. However it seems advisable to have a special auto bus leaving the association at different intervals during the day which will take those desiring to go directly to the camp. It is expected that this can be arranged for a very small fare. More information in detail will be given Saturday. There will be some fireworks during the evening for those who can plan to stay and accommodations for twenty-five can be arranged for those desiring to stay through the night and return early in the morning. It will be advisable for each party to supply their own lunch. However the camp cook has been secured and will be ready to serve bacon and eggs, coffee and rolls, etc., at a very nominal fee.

FOOLED RABEL'S BARKEEP.
Einstein Bought Ham Sandwich, Got Rum, Served Summons.
The New York morning papers today devoted much space in telling of the raids made Wednesday in that city on violators of the Volstead act, by squads sent out by the department to enforce the prohibition law, one of the squads being headed by an enforcement officer named Einstein. In its story about the raids the New York Sun-Herald tells of how Conrad Rabel, who runs the Hotel Eichler on Railroad avenue in this city, was caught, which it is said happened a few nights ago. This is the Sun-Herald's story:

Much of the preliminary information leading up to yesterday's climactic series of raids was obtained by "Izzy" Einstein and his flying squad. At Kingston "Izzy" nearly met his Nemesis. A bartender in a cafe opposite the railroad station, being suspicious and having heard of the raids by this time, resounded, met Einstein's bland request for a drink with the statement: "We serve drinks only with ham sandwiches."

"Izzy" said he did not care much for sandwiches, especially ham sandwiches. Finally the drink collaborator confessed he had entertained misgivings that his would-be customer was none other than a certain "Izzy" who was going about the county decrying honest barkeepers to their subsequent sorrow. "Izzy" so he tells the story—assured the suspicious one he had never heard of this unscrupulous servitor of the law.

"Well, you'll have to buy a ham sandwich to convince me," said the drink mixer. "That you're not 'Izzy' Einstein."

"I tell you, bo, it wasn't easy," said "Izzy" telling the story yesterday. "But I pocketed my racial pride, bought the ham sandwich, was served with a drink of whiskey and then served a summons on Conrad Rabel, the proprietor. I suppose a detective has to do all things to all men, but when it comes to buying ham to conceal one's identity, I say it's a damn outrage! No, I didn't eat it."

Against Misrepresentation.
The following resolution was offered by James V. Simpson of this city, at the suggestion of Mayor Canfield, who is chairman of the committee of the New York State Mayors' Association which investigated the matter of censorship for motion pictures recently, and was unanimously adopted: Whereas, the preservation of order and protection of property and the safety of the citizens of our cities depend upon the effectiveness of the police departments of such respective cities; and

Whereas, their effectiveness depend partially upon the estimation of respect in which they are regarded and the recognition of lawful authority entertained by the people toward them; and

Whereas, the present manner of representing the policemen in motion pictures is often in exaggerated and distorted form and in such manner as to hold them up to ridicule and derision and to discount their proper sphere of influence for the maintenance of the law;

Be it resolved, by this, the State Patrolmen's Association, representing the patrolmen of the state of New York, that we deplore this disrespectful manner of representation of policemen in motion pictures, and that the National Association of Motion Picture Producers and the producers thereof be urged to treat policemen in pictures in a proper and respectful manner, and that the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures be urged to exercise a more rigid and severe censorship as to pictures burlesquing or misrepresenting officers of the law; and

Be it further resolved, that the secretary of this association, communicate with said National Association and said National Board, and transmit a copy of this resolution to each of them and also to other motion picture producers.

HARD COAL MINES HARD HIT BY "VACATIONS" TAKEN BY MINERS

Insurgents, Defying Wilson and Own Leaders, Not Working to Number of 100,000—Big Operators Are Hardest Hit.

Telegraph to The Freeman.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 2.—Insurgent mine workers, who declared "a vacation" yesterday, in defiance of President Wilson and officers of the United Mine Workers of America, have succeeded in tying up the greater part of the anthracite industry. Operations from throughout districts one, seven and nine of the anthracite field early today show that 100,000 of the 175,000 workers are not at work and that 180 of the 300 collieries of the field are unable to move a wheel.

The big companies are hard hit, a large portion of their collieries being tied up. The smaller workings are running but they are from 25 to 35 per cent short handed. No disorders have been reported. The miners have followed the insurgent lead and gone on their "vacation."

In district number one, the Lehigh Valley Coal Company has only one of its seven big collieries in operation. Three collieries of the Susquehanna division are tied up.

25 CARS OF PAPER FOR WOMAN VOTE

And Election Boards of Country Will Have to O. K. Little Item of 12,500,000 Additional Lead Pencils.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, Sept. 2.—Without counting the cost of registration the American Forestry Association announced today that with 27,000,000 women voting, approximately twenty-five carloads of paper will be used to enable them to mark ballots in the voting booth.

In other figures about 13,400 reams or about 804,000 pounds of paper will be perilled by the women either with a cross at the top or by scratching the ticket. Careful estimates of the association show that the paper will cost $60,000 and that the press run on the ballots will figure $20,000. The total cost, including cutting and wrapping, at $5,000, will be $100,000. The composition and the plates for such a big run, were it all done in one shop, make up the rest of the association's estimate.

If half the number of lead pencils have to be put in to meet the extra election day business, that means 13,500,000 pencils at a cost of not to exceed five cents per pencil, and pencils have gone up like everything else, there, the association figures, is a little bill of $675,000 for the election boards to O. K.

This figure does not take into consideration the fact that tons of paper will be used in registering the women in order that they may vote. The association has only made estimates on the Presidential election and the average size of the ballot in such a case is 16 by 22 inches. The association says registration, which is done in books, will probably use up as much more paper. Here are the questions the women will have to answer under oath:

Residence and whether more than one family lives in the same house.

Party affiliation is they wish to vote in the primaries.

Their age.

Their nativity—place of birth.

Their color.

The time they have lived in their precinct. Legislative districts and state.

If they have been naturalized or were born in this country.

The date of their naturalization and the court where it took place.

After each name is a blank space for remarks to be made by the judges whenever they see fit to do so.

"This one little detail of the women voting is a welcome one," says Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Forestry Association, "for the women of the country can now be actively enlisted in a way they can make that enlistment felt for a national forest policy. Paper is made from pulp wood, and the newspaper publishers know all about the mounting cost of that, but none of us are against the women voting because they are going to use up twenty-five carloads of paper to exercise the franchise.

"The women of the country are the great tree planters. The women members of the American Forestry Association are the great workers for conservation of our national resources, and now that they can vote we will hear much more in a positive way for a national forest policy.

"Extra use of paper for voting is nothing when compared to some of the uses into which the products of our forests are going at a rapid rate. Thousands of men are at work and millions of dollars are invested to put 700,000,000,000 matches on the market every year. I do not believe that quite all of them go to lighting gas stoves for heating the husband's office every morning. I believe a goodly share goes toward lighting his evening pipe. One match concerns alone uses two hundred thousand feet of yellow pine logs and sugar pine every day in this great match industry. So you see the extra burden of our forests because of the women voting will not be a great load. The big thing is that now the women can vote are just so much nearer a national movement that will conserve our forests, which are being depleted or destroyed by fire nearly three times faster than we are replenishing them."

LINEN IS USED IN NEW UNDIES

Fabric Is Highly in Favor for

LACE IS MORE CONSPICUOUS

Decorations Gains in Preference for Embellishment of Garments—Colors Have Become More and Still More Varied.

The land is all agog with sales of white, which means that the summer underthings are upon the counters in great multitude. Observes a fashion writer. Have you ever tried to buy lingerie during spaces between these sales of white? And have you met discouragement because there was no little choice? Well, the lesson learned by experiences of this sort is to wander forth at the white time of year and to do your buying then, for you will find the wares of the world presented for your selection.

The materials now are inferior to those of some years ago. Now we see blooming under the $3.98 sign post an array that would have formerly been relegated to the basement. The dealers have announced that they are pushing domestic underclothes because of the scarcity of French and Philippine stocks, and so we see cotton crepes and muslins of none too dainty a quality and our imaginations picture the thickness of them as we, perforce, bid goodbye to the thin silk and muslin surfaces to which our pampered skins have become accustomed.

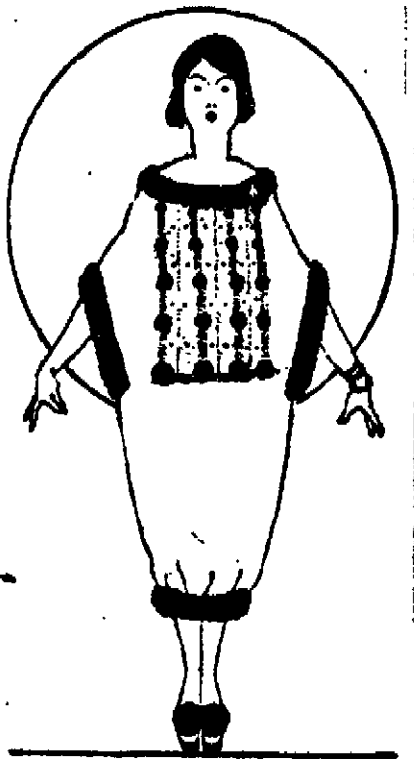

Fine Apparel Expensive.
However, once the situation has been studied, we find that we need not at once join the ranks of the wearers of heavy muslin underwear unless we be so inclined. There are ways to dodge around these counters of thicknesses and paths that lead to more attractive displays, though the result brings ever the inevitable conclusion: that much money is needed for a respectable looking wardrobe.

The chiffon and silk lingerie is more daintily made than ever before and more originally conceived. But it looks as though the fine French underwear made of dainty muslin or handkerchief linen were wedging its way to the foremost ranks. During the war we were deprived of this type of undergarment, but it is, after all, the most attractive sort of lingerie and, slowly but surely, it is marching to leadership. More importations are being made every day. One buyer of French lingerie made the statement that the French were repeating their former achievements and that they had no thought for anything new. Well, if the pure delicacy and charm cannot be improved upon, then we are thankful enough for the things as they exist.

Among the many bridal trousseaus that have been purchased during the last five months, muslin undergarments have held the vote of popularity. Silk lace that one can scarcely distinguish from the prevalent negligee. There are thin night frocks trimmed with Irish lace and laces of other expensive and real varieties. One had a yoke and sleeves of Chantilly with a wide band to make the hem of the garment. It was as beautiful as anything which has ever been shown in the way of lingerie and surely marks a return to the lingerie that was done in the trousseaus of our grandmothers.

The silk and chiffon negligees have not diminished in beauty nor in quantity, and in spite of the fact that we hear how scarce these materials have become there seems to be every evidence of plenty of silken underclothes for those who can afford them. A few sets of chiffon underwear was trimmed with satin bindings of narrow ribbon plucked over the edges and many streamers of the same color of ribbon (the sets were made in many colors) streaming from the places where the ribbon was used to tie the garments into place.

Absence of Buttons.
There seems to be a welcome absence of buttons on all of the newer underwear. More and more the designs appear with rubber bands and loosely tied ribbons to hold them in their proper positions. The easier they are to wear the less will we resent the cost.

Tailored underwear has come into favor recently, and there is, in consequence, much of that variety of underwear to be seen. There is much to be said in its favor, for there are many women who, in the daily course of their lives, cannot stop to fuss with ribbons and laces and rosebuds. Still they cling to that tendency which is their right—the love of dainty, soft and luxurious underwear. It is there that the tailored silk underwear comes into its own.

Following the pattern of the single piece men's underwear there have been some things like this designed for women's wear and they have won a real response. They are made of fine qualities of silks and wash satins in white or in flesh color and they have never a flower nor a furbelow to bedeck them. Then there are bloomers, which have proved beyond doubt the strength of their hold upon the feminine masses. They are useful for wear with tight skirts, which, to look their best, demand that petticoats be thrown into the discard.

The colors of the new underthings become more and more varied. The tradition of white for purposes of this sort has almost vanished. Now, any pastel shade is used and the more unusual it is the better. We have seen the outer effects of black and red and orange underclothes and marvelled at them, but, nevertheless, we have settled back into a casual acceptance of colored underwear as an everyday possibility. In chiffon and in crepe de chine and satin the colors vary through all tones and shades, and even in the cotton materials there is seen every variety of tone.

On the tinted underclothes there is much use of embroidery in silk threads. In woven threads, in mercerized stitches and even in colored cotton embroidery stitching. It is considered much better to form an edge by a buttonhole of some contrasting shade than to resort to the old method of just making a hem. Then there are the long woven stitches, which show to their best advantage on the thin chiffon things.

From underwear to negligee is but a slip, and it does seem as though we are paying more attention to the graceful and becoming robes d'intérieur which so long have been a necessary part of the wardrobe of a French woman. Never before have we shown such a concentrated interest in the gowns which are for private appearance only.

The lines of the new negligees are simple enough, but the trimmings give more grace as one sees them in the mirror. On the newest ones there are layers of children or constructed that the thing look only like floating clouds. Every track and crease is smoothed so that the garment may be lightness itself. Lace is used lavishly. Sometimes it constitutes the bodice and then again it is used for the trimmings. Action slip on that only a suggestion of its lowliness shows through the overlying chiffon. Silk lace trims the edges of other children negligees, being carried around the long lines of the outer robe and giving the effect of something not quite tangible as its substance.

There have been, of course (they are too beautiful to be ignored), but the thin muslin and linen things intrinsically handmade have received no attention on the dealers in these things.

Lace in the Linen.
Lace is being used more and more, and more and more for underclothes. You will say that this has been done since the beginning of time, but this new use of wide bands and is used in great abundance. One sees the finest sorts of handmade lace inserted in muslin on the new undergarments. There are lace panels for chemises, negligees, five, six and seven inches in length, put on in slightly ruffled borders, and lace for chemises and negligees, lace sleeves and trunks for night dresses, lace in every conceivable place.

In fact the newer night dresses are so elaborately done and are bedecked with wide and expensive trimmings of "Mapping" the Air.

The greatest discovery yet made in exploring the air is that the atmosphere consists of two layers, the lower extending from sea level up to 10,000 meters, in which there is a steady fall of temperature with elevation. This is called the troposphere. Above this there is no fall, and up to 20,000 meters a slight rise. The upper layer is known as the stratosphere. It is actually speed, leading for an airplane to rise from the ground to the bottom of the stratosphere, say about 10,000 miles in one hour. It is not to be expected, however, that a man will be able to fly in the stratosphere, as it is so high and cold.

Lifting in Weaving a Shawl.

The Metropolitan museum of New York has a rare Persian shawl said to be 150 years old. It is a shawl of 11 feet by 4 feet, worked in one flowing design of the pomegranate and the River of Life with the scheme of the mosque. The predominating colors are mellowed pinks and browns with alternating shades of steel gray and rusty tones. An expert to whom the shawl was shown, said it was a masterpiece of weaving. It represented the lifetime of the weaver.

STATE POLICE IN ANNUAL SESSION

Welcomed By Mayor Canfield And Dean John J. Hickey at Opening Session Wednesday—Convention Closes With Auto Ride Around Ashokan Reservoir And Banquet Tonight.

The Rev. Dean John J. Hickey of St. Mary's Church gave the delegates at the eighteenth annual convention of the State Patrolmen's association in session at the Elks club a brilliant address at the opening session Wednesday afternoon. Mayor Canfield paid a high tribute to the work they had accomplished.

Andrew W. Walker, Kingston's well known motorcycle officer, and president of the Kingston Patrolmen's Association, presided at the opening session and introduced the speakers of the afternoon, Mayor Canfield and Dean Hickey, and at the close of their addresses turned the session over to President Thomas P. Dolan of Albany. All of the business sessions are executive and matters of interest to patrolmen throughout the state are discussed. It is also expected to elect at this convention second and third vice-presidents and secretary. The other officers hold over until the next convention, their terms not having expired.

Dean Hickey said that one of the greatest blessings in the world was peace and that no man was happy unless peaceful. The police department is the minister of peace. This is a law abiding country and the majority of the citizens believe in the law and its enforcement. A policeman today was held in respect in every community. He held a position of honor because he held the security of the law in his hands. The dean in closing said he always had held the local department in high respect because of the character of the men in the department, and that Kingston had one of the best police departments in the world.

President Dolan, who replied to Mayor Canfield's address of welcome, a brief resume of which was given in Wednesday's paper, said that the average policeman was a local citizen who believed in the enforcement of law and order. It has been to the credit of the police departments of New York state that in these days of strife and strike within the boundaries of the entire state. He thanked Dean Hickey for his presence and kind words, and said that speaking for the association they wished to thank Mayor Canfield for his welcome to Kingston, and knew that their stay in the city would indeed be a pleasant one.

Before going into executive session the delegates tendered Mayor Canfield and Dean Hickey a rising vote of thanks.

Among the early arrivals at the sessions were: President Dolan and Secretary Richard J. O'Brien and Charles Davenport and James McLean, all of Albany.

Amsterdam is represented by Walter M. Kline, auditor of the association, while Hudson is represented by James J. McEneaney, who is treasurer of the association.

Among the others present are: J. Francis Walsh of Cohoes; Henry Sherman of Oswego; William E. Ames of Rensselaer; John J. Brennan and Charles Miner of Troy; J. Taunsey of Watertown; and Joseph Judge and Charles Lucy of Beacon.

At the session Wednesday Kingston was represented by James V. Wagoner, first vice-president of the state association, and Sergeant Hickey, and Officers Walker and Welch of the local department.

Wednesday evening at the close of the business session the delegates were the guests of the local association at Keener's Theatre.

The sessions officially close this afternoon with an auto ride around the Ashokan reservoir and a banquet at Pessner's grill on Railroad street.

USE OF APPLES OF DOUBLE BENEFIT

Eat more apples! Bake more apples and apple pies! Have apple sauce for breakfast every morning! Is the appeal to consumers made in a statement issued today by Dr. Eugene H. Porter, of the state division of foods and markets.

With a bumper crop in all the eastern states, New York this year will produce one-fifth of all the apples raised in the United States. In all there will be approximately 40,000 cars of New York state apples to market. This quantity is several times as many as the markets can take care of. Unless the usual consumption is increased many of these apples will be left to rot on the ground, for the price, which the grower is now offered for them is only $1.50 a barrel and that does not pay the cost of the barrel and the picking and hauling to the station, not to mention the other costs of the grower in raising the apples.

In spite of this large production and low prices at the shipping points the retail price for apples has not lowered accordingly. This is not entirely because retailers are ignorant of the market, nor because they are intentional profiteers in apples, according to Commissioner Porter. The real trouble is that the retailers buy in such small quantities and their turnover is so slow that they charge a large margin of profit to protect themselves and pay the high overhead cost of their small volume of sales.

If consumers will demand plenty of apples from the retailers and make it clear that they will buy more and more of them if the price is lowered, the apples and the lower prices will be quickly forthcoming. If the retailers begin to buy in quantity the great volume of apples can be moved on much smaller profit margins and the grower can receive enough to pay his legitimate costs of production.

In addition to the ordinary retail stores where apples are now sold, Commissioner Porter states that arrangements are being made with many large chain stores and department stores that do not ordinarily handle fruit of any kind to this year buy apples direct from the growers and feature sales of apples at special low prices. Arrangements are also being made with the market bureau of nearby states to feature apple campaigns in these states to stimulate the consumption of this fruit.

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away," is an old and very true saying. Apples are an excellent food. The red striped Dutchess apples which are just now coming into the market are the very best for pies and cooking. Later will come the Twenty-ounce, a large red apple that has no superior for baking purposes. Still later will come the McIntosh, a small, bright red apple which is superior for eating purposes. These New York state apples are worthy of a place on every table. If consumers will only act and bring their great buying power to bear on the problem it can be solved; the farmers can be saved from loss and the consumers secure an excellent food at low cost.

The whole solution hinges upon the response of the consumer to the appeal to use more apples. As a beginning in the drive it is urged that this week be made an "apple pie" week and that every man, woman and child in the state consume some of this wholesome food during the week. If this were done the problem of moving the early apples, which are best fitted for cooking purposes, would be solved.

CAPITAL UNMOVED OVER ELECTION

Washington Has Drifted Away from Politics, and Nothing Short of a Political Earthquake Can Make It "Sit Up and Take Notice."

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 2.—Perhaps it's the dog days. Perhaps it's because the price of sugar has fallen. Perhaps jittering around the country and catching the breezes thus created is more enticing. But whatever it is that lies behind it, the capital of your country is not in the least excited over the presidential election down on the calendar for next November.

It isn't that this political center has "drifted away" from Senator Harding. It isn't that it has drifted away from Governor Cox. It has simply drifted away from politics, and nothing less than a political earthquake could make it focus its attention on the details of the present.

Of course, Washington is passing through an unusual period just now. For years it had a war on its hands and within its gates were hundreds of thousands of transients—war workers, visiting missions from foreign lands; a diplomatic corps many times larger than at present and all working like mad; business men of all nations, and, lastly, our own legislative and executive branches of government going full swing.

Now congress is in recess. It frequently happens that a solitary senator and a couple of representatives are about all the members of congress to be seen marching down the otherwise deserted corridors of the capitol and office buildings, making the walls echo with the clatter of heels on marble floors. And few are the diplomats now on the scene.

The war workers are gradually disappearing—some going to jobs in other cities, some going back to their home towns. Foreign missions have ended their tasks and gone, and as most of the business men who came here on war business they, too, are now few in number.

So after years of intense excitement and furious work, the war over and victory won, Washington feels it has earned a rest. And it is resting. Politics? It is tired of politics. War? It hates war. It was, to talk home stuff for a while and to do it. The various home brews are good for an evening's conversation any time.

Still there's one thing the capital is interested in. And that is the president's afternoon rides. These have come to be an institution here and the folks know it and flock to catch a glimpse of the First Citizen as he leaves the White House grounds or returns thereto.

And the heat of the afternoon is past and the shadows begin to lengthen, to fall athwart the circling drives about the White House, a nurse or two, pushing their youngster-laden prams before them, arrive at the gate through which President Wilson is expected to exit. A few minutes later a boy or two stroll up and seat themselves on the coping atop which rests the grille of the enclosure. A seedy-looking man or two now join the little band, and thus, slowly, the crowd collects. An automobile draws up not far from the gate after a while, and another and another, until the streets are pretty well lined with vehicles and more and more people take their stand as near the official car as possible and watch for the official car or carriage to make its appearance.

Finally it arrives at the gate. There is a minute of excitement and stir in the crowd; a craning of necks and a lot of murmuring: "There he is!" "He looks real well!" "He doesn't look very well!" "Isn't his smile sad?" "I don't think he looks very sick." And so on. You know. Everybody seeing the president and saying what he (everybody) thinks with the usual inconsistencies.

Then, when the president, lifting his hat and bowing, passes out of sight down the street, the crowd breaks up suddenly, much more suddenly than it formed, and in a few minutes only a handful of people are left behind. These few, not satisfied with one look, intend to stay where they are until the president comes back so they can see him again. An hour or so later they form the nucleus of the second jam, like the first, who await the return of the nation's chief executive. Only this time, instead of facing the White House grounds and the gate thereto, they keep "still," their faces turned in the opposite direction.

Politics? Folks are not interested in 'em here. Perhaps interest may be kindled later on, but even the spark of it will be hard to find.

Those taking part in the services will include the pastors of the districts and local ministers. Mrs. Ida Murphy and deaconesses of the missionary auxiliaries will assist in the meetings. A welcome is extended to everybody.

ROTARY PLANS FOR INTER-CITY MEET

In addition to hearing the address by Senator Sage at their meeting on Wednesday, the Rotary Club heard a few remarks from Secretary Bryant of the Richmond, Va. Rotary Club, who happened to be in Kingston for the day and was picked up on the street by Arthur C. Connelly and brought to the luncheon. Plans for the inter-city meet in Poughkeepsie next Wednesday were discussed and it was decided to hold the weekly meeting in Newburgh last night, leaving Kingston at 12:45. At the inter-city meet in Newburgh last night Kingston had no baseball club, but this year it will be represented by a nine, now in process of forming, under the management of Captain Everett Fessenden, which will, it is expected, take first prize. Frank W. Thompson will see that the tennis prize comes to Kingston and C. R. Stull will endeavor to maintain his golf record of last year. Satisfied with these prospective achievements, Kingston will not put on a vaudeville act at the dinner in the evening.

NEW DANCES

Devised By Masters Include Cat Step and Camel Walk.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 2.—The cat step and the camel walk were added to the list of new dances with the approval of the National Association of Masters of Dancing in annual session here.

The association also conferred its benediction on the chic walk, fox trot and the triangle one step. The delegates were optimistic about the future of their creations. Interest in dancing is much greater since prohibition, they say, and they are eager to furnish variety for patrons.

The cat step is a rather unusual dance. You step along rather cautiously for three or four steps or more and then to right and left, with equal caution. These fundamental rules can be elaborated upon, of course, but one less adept can dance it with greatest ease.

In the camel walk the position of the dancers is the most important thing. They must stand very straight and the ballet step is incorporated. The chic walk is a modified one step, such as the French dance, and was inspired by the way so many of the soldiers danced when they returned home.

The women's clubs and the dance masters must join in the campaign to make all religious denominations realize that they should not put their thoughts into the minds of their members by saying that if a boy and a girl danced together they are going to perdition.

John Francis Wagner, general secretary of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, addressing the masters' convention, "The master also needs performing," continued Mrs. Wagner. "If you take the wiggle out of music you take the wiggle out of the dance. As you all know, the work of club women since the war has been principally along the Americanization line, and I think that recreation is one of the best means of Americanization."

Harvesting by Machinery.
The beginning of mechanical methods in the harvesting of harvesting by machinery was not made until 1880.

HOMESPUN YARN.

Few pictures, well chosen, are better than a wall full.

Bulbs for next spring's flowers should be ordered by now.

The skilled housewife will wash, polish and label her jars of canned foods.

When you burn the trash after the picnic is over, keep a close watch against starting a bad fire.

Careful home canners are sure no particles are on top of the can rubber before placing the lid on the can.

A cotton case or bag used as a slip-over cover will serve as protection to the winter blankets and is much more easily laundered.

Much trouble in home canning may be literally washed away if all fruits and vegetables are thoroughly cleaned when first brought in from the garden.

Fruit juices are good throughout the year. Beverages, syrups, sauces, relatin, and frozen desserts may be made with their aid. Cornell has a bulletin on fruit juices; the college of agriculture at Ithaca will send it on request.

Many Reasons for Insomnia.

Whenever sleep becomes coy and must be wooed it is a sign that something has gone amiss and must be remedied. To obtain sleep then becomes a search for a complex mental, emotional or physical thorn in the side. Loss of sleep may be due to some physical thorn such as an overburdened intestine or stomach, an abscessed tooth root, thickened tonsils, a skin irritated or cold, or an infection in some hidden, wall-of-iron area of the anatomy. Equally as often some unconscious memory of financial reverses or difficulties, domestic complications or some other work hardships sleep.

DON'T GET FORCE OF CURRENT

Simple Explanation of Fact That Birds Are Not Harmed by Contact With Trolley Wire.

"If a trolley wire is deadly to touch, how can the birds sit upon it and be unharmed?" is a question not infrequently asked and much less frequently answered in a satisfactory way. It is perfectly true that the trolley wire carries an electric current strong enough to kill not only small birds, but human beings, but to do any harm this current must pass through the body of the bird or the person to the ground. The connection of the body with the ground need not be direct, but it must exist in some way.

A person could sit on the trolley wire just as safely as do the birds, but if he should stretch out his hand and touch another wire or an iron pipe running directly or indirectly to the ground, the full force of the current would then pass through, or be grounded, by the connection made by his body. In the case of the birds there is nothing to afford a ground connection, and they are in consequence unharmed, the electric current passing through the wire under them as the water would be passing through a main on which a person might be sitting.

WHOLE FAMILY ENJOYS CIGAR

Members of Philippine Household Share the Pleasures of My Lady Nicotine Without Jealousy.

Nowadays, when the supply of tobacco is short and the price is long—so that, as someone recently said, a man "can now get an excellent five-cent cigar for 25 cents"—life in the Philippines has its attractions for the smoker.

Saying nothing for the quality, a glance at the accompanying illustration tion leaves no doubt in anybody's mind as to the quantity of the cigar in question. However, the young woman is not going to smoke this two-handed cigar all by herself. It is probably a family cigar.

A Two-Handed Cigar of the Philippines.

According to a writer in Popular Science. Monthly, these huge cigars are suspended by a cord from the ceiling of the living room, so that anyone passing by can snatch a puff.

Island in the Air.

Three miles south of the Mesa Encantada in Mexico is a splendid specimen of fantastic erosion—an "island" in the air; a rock with overhanging sides nearly 400 feet high, seventy acres in area on the fairly level top, indented with countless bays, notched with dizzy chasms. The greater part of the island overhangs the sea like a huge mushroom, and on the top stands a town, which for artistic charm, ethnological interest and romantic history has no peer. This little town of Acuna is one of the prehistoric Pueblo architecture. It was only with incredible labor this island town in the air was built. It was reached by a mere trail of toe holes up the stem of the "mushroom." The age of the island is not known, except that it was already old in 1540.

Not Guilty.

Archie was roller-skating for the first time. You know what that means. It means plaster and linctament.

After thirteen somersaults and 27 violent encounters with the boarding, Archie decided that he had had enough for one day. He also decided that the next time he roller-skated he would do so on a feather bed.

On hands and knees he began to crawl painfully from the arena. He was nearly out of the wood when an attendant halted him.

"Hi!" cried the man. "You should be in the next room. I won't let beginners are not allowed to skate in this hall!"

Archie gazed at the attendant without answer.

"Well," he answered sadly, "who's been skating?"

To Give Bibles to Mayors.

A walk across New York state for the distribution of Bibles is planned, beginning at Niagara Falls, by Rev. Samuel C. Brown, who served as chaplain overseas with the Fifty-sixth Infantry, the New York Evening Post states. In honor of the American Bible society he will present a Bible to the mayor of each city through which he passes and to any needy persons brought to his attention.

In army uniform and carrying a knapsack full of Bibles, he expects to make 25 miles a day.

"The Three Kings of Cologne."

This refers to the three who were of the East who followed the star to the birthplace of Jesus Christ. Their names are usually given as Melchior, Gaspar and Balthazar. Their bones are supposed to be preserved in the cathedral of Cologne.

Wax for Phonograph Records.

The wax made use of in the manufacture of phonograph cylinders is from the carnauba, a wax palm. The best quality comes from the young and tender leaves. They are cut at three different periods during the wax season, which extends from September to March. Two thousand leaves are required to make from twenty-five to thirty pounds of wax. The leaves are dried in the sun and then thoroughly beaten with flails to remove the wax. The raw material is melted in boiling water and strained to remove foreign matter. The strained mass hardens quickly and turns a light yellow.

Careful Utterance.

It is unusual for a politician to go through life always addressing audiences, and yet always avoiding the orator's temptation to please and captivate by extravagant and false sentiment and statement. The writer, and particularly the political writer, is tempted to this sort of immorality, but still more the speaker, for with the latter the reward of applause is prompt and seductive. It is amazing to look over Lincoln's record and find how seldom he went beyond bounds, how responsible and conscientious his utterances long before these utterances became of national importance.—Richard Watson Gilder.

Measuring Fatigue.

A unique method has been discovered to measure just how tired one's body becomes after hours of work, says Boys' Life. A line is drawn across the forearm with a sharp point, not sharp enough to break the skin, but only to drive out the blood and leave a straight white line on the skin. An observer holding a stop-watch measures the time it takes for the blood to rush back into the skin and the white line to fade. The exact number of seconds and fraction of a second is recorded. This test is repeated say at intervals of one hour all day until the working hours are over. When these readings are plotted on paper a curve is drawn which tells at a glance just how one's energy ebbs throughout the day. There is always a marked jump in the line after lunch hour.

Iron Furnace to India.

Pioneers of the iron industry throughout the country may recall the stark erected several years ago at Battelle, Ala., which was abandoned because it was too far from raw materials and had inadequate transportation facilities, save a Christian Science Monitor's Birmingham (Ala.) correspondent.

For 11 years the furnace stood inactive until the war brought the demand in Mesopotamia for railroads to move troops and supplies. In August, 1917, the old stack at Battelle was bought by a group of iron makers, who took it down piece by piece, shipped it to New Orleans and loaded it on a steamship for India. This is said to be the first iron furnace to cross the sea and make iron on two continents.

The Date Palm.

The date palm differs from other trees in that the trunk is not solid, but its center is filled with pith, round which is a tough bark, full of small fibers when young, which, as the tree grows old, harden and become lignous. In this bark, the leaves are closely joined, which in the younger trees, but after they are cut around above the sheath that surrounds them, they expand very wide on every side of the stem, and, at the older leaves decay, the stiff branches in height. The leaves, when the tree has grown to a size for bearing fruit, are six to eight feet long, very broad when spread out, and are used for covering the tops of houses or similar purposes.

"Mac Swiney is perceptibly weaker. He is sinking rapidly."
The head doctor at the British Hospital notified Mrs. Mac Swiney that her husband was so low in vitality that he could not be removed even if he was released. This was the twenty-first day of the Lord Mayor's hunger strike.

Indian is Model Soldier.
Accusations that he was a German spy caused Otto Leander, Choctaw Indian, to be made a hero and incidentally to be chosen as a model American soldier for a portrait made to hang upon the walls of the French Federal building.

London, in war days a foreman on a ranch near Calvin, Okla., learned from idle rumor in his neighborhood that he was accused of being a German spy. He immediately enlisted and in the course of a brilliant war record was cited for bravery. During the engagement for which he was cited he captured two machine guns and 15 prisoners, manning a machine gun for three days after the remainder of his regiment had been killed. Dewarrent, a French artist, picked upon Leander as a typical American soldier and made a painting from him which now graces the walls of the French Federal building.

Twice wounded and twice gassed Leander has been doing vocational work and only recently brought home his belated to McAlister from Oklahoma City.—Whitely Pearson.

Largest Motor Ship.
The Africa, which was launched at Copenhagen, Denmark, Dec. 11, 1919, by the East Asiatic company, is said to be the largest motor ship in the world. Her dimensions are: Length over all, 484 feet 6 inches; beam on frames, 60 feet; depth from keel to deck, 42 feet; displacement, 18,000 tons, deadweight, 12,270 tons. Her main engines are two six-cylinder, four-stroke cycle motors of ordinary type. Each engine develops 2,200 indicated horse-power at 115 revolutions per minute. The diameter and stroke of the cylinders are 700 millimeters and 1,130 millimeters respectively.

Women Export Life Savers.
One man at least, however, woman life savers in preference to men for patrolling his beach. That is Mr. Gray, manager of the park pool in St. Louis, Mo. According to Col. W. R. Langhorne, life service expert of the Red Cross, Mr. Gray declares that since crying women at this job during the war when the bearded men were abroad, he would rather have them than men. Many women are now qualifying as life savers and are getting the training for their task in the Y. W. C. A. and school pools throughout the country.

TURNING AWAY FROM MEAT
In New York Big Hotels Meals Entirely of Vegetables Are Increasing in Popularity.

According to the New York Times, the diners of the American metropolises are becoming vegetarians. Approximately one-seventh to one-fifth of the guests at the hotels here today are ordering vegetables for their meals instead of meats. All of the big hotels keep a very careful record of the sales of the different items on the menus for each day, and a recapitulation made recently at the Hotel Pennsylvania revealed that a surprising percentage of patrons omitted meat items entirely in their lunch and dinner orders. While the percentage for lunch was much higher than that for dinner, the number of dinner guests who refrained from meat entirely was also very large.

In the opinion of Chef Julien Jacques of the Pennsylvania this is the result of years of emphasis on the value of vegetarianism. The vegetarian, a few years ago, was very generally the butt of the comic papers; but with the war a great deal more came to be thought of him by people who found that a thoroughly satisfactory meal could be made from vegetables and at much less cost. Chef Jacques believes that this is responsible for the many calls given nowadays in the big hotels for vegetable luncheons and dinners, which have a special place on the menus.

Another comes in round, irregularly shaped lumps. Its color ranges from a pale yellow to a reddish brown. It is sometimes transparent and sometimes opaque. When it is heated gradually in an oil bath it becomes soft and flexible and may be cut by drawing the surface with fingered oil and then pressing them together while hot. Cloudy amber may be clarified by boiling it in oil, so the oil fills the numerous pores to which the turbid appearance of the amber is due. Formerly the small bits of amber cast off in making oil were wasted or ground up for use in varnish, but now they are pressed together into "amber" or "pressed amber."

AMERICAN RED CROSS TO GIVE RURAL HELP

Program for Public Health and Community Welfare Is Now Well Under Way.

Rural communities and towns of less than 8,000 population benefit in a very large part by the public health and community welfare work of the American Red Cross. Almost all of the 2,000 Red Cross chapters have some rural sections in their territory. Therefore the Red Cross Rural Service.

Briefly, the purpose of Rural Service is to assist people to get out of life more health, wealth and happiness. In this purpose public health instruction and general educational progress of both children and adults play a big part.

Recreation is found to be one of the biggest needs in rural life. There is lack of sufficient play-life for the children and social life for the adults. Athletics, pageants, debating clubs, baseball leagues, community singing and other social events which bring the people of surrounding communities together have been organized and carried on under the guidance of Red Cross rural workers to great advantage. In many instances solving recreational problems and getting people together proves to be the awakening of the community to other conditions which may be improved by united action.

As a result of community organization, townships in which there had been neither plans nor interest in community progress have been organized to work together with the united purpose of bringing their community up to the most enlightened standards. Lecture and musical entertainment courses have been started as a result of community meetings, as well as circulating libraries. Red Cross schools of instruction in Home Nursing, Care of the Sick and First Aid. In the larger towns the need for restrooms and public comfort stations is being met. Playgrounds for the children have been established and recreational activities worked out for the year.

In order that there may be concerted effort in carrying on the programs of the various welfare agencies in the rural districts, Red Cross Rural Service helps the organizations already on the ground. The main object of the service is to lend a hand everywhere and take the lead only where necessary.

Through the Junior Red Cross the boys and girls of the United States are giving a fresh start in life to little war orphans scattered all over Europe. They have set up orphan's homes in France, school colonies in Belgium and Montenegro, and day schools in Albania.

They are sending dozens of young Syrians, Montenegrins, and Albanians to American colleges in Constantinople and Beirut, and maintaining more than a hundred orphans of French soldiers at colleges and trade schools. In orphanages and farm schools up and down the peninsula of Italy there are nearly 500 wards of American Juniors.

Last winter a thousand French children from the inadequate shelters of the devastated regions were sent by the Junior Red Cross to spend the cold months in warmer parts of France. At the same time five thousand little Belgians were having a hot lunch every day at Junior Red Cross school canteens.

American school children have already raised something like a million dollars for these enterprises, and they are still hard at work.

In China, through campaigns of education, the Junior Red Cross is helping to combat widely prevalent blindness and cholera.

RED CROSS RELIEF IN CENTRAL EUROPE
But for timely assistance of the American Red Cross during the last year, a large proportion of the 20,000,000 population of the Balkan States might have starved or perished from disease or exposure. Six million dollars worth of food, clothing and medical supplies have been sent to the Balkans—Rumania, Bulgaria, Albania, Montenegro, Serbia, Bosnia and Greece—since the beginning of Red Cross relief operations in Central Europe, while millions of dollars worth of food alone has been sent to the needy in these states.

The money expended by the Red Cross in this stricken portion of Europe has been used to set up hospitals, orphanages, dispensaries, mobile medical units and to help in the general reconstruction of devastated areas. American tractors and other farming implements have been sent to the agricultural regions where aid has been given in plowing the land.

By the last of this year probably all American Red Cross agencies administering relief in Central Europe will have withdrawn. For that time, it is believed, the people will have approached a normal state of living and will be able through their own agencies which the Red Cross has helped set up to provide for themselves.

Signs of Consumption.

What are the early symptoms? The patient may have neither cough nor expectoration. The food dried in the stomach. His appetite is poor, and he begins to lose weight or to sleep nervously. He is easily exhausted after exercise. Anyone who notices these symptoms in himself should consult a doctor. In any family, rich or poor, in which one member is known to have consumption, all the others should be examined by specialists.

Stand Run Like Public Library For Japanese Boys Who Like To Read

American Missions in Interchurch World Movement Seeking to Keep Up With Appetite for Books Which Dominates Youth of Eastern Empire.

"CRACK!" Crack! Two shots rang out on the still night air.

No. These are not messenger boys in their much-maligned role of fiction-devourers, but are—Hoshimura Togo please write—honored-to-goodness Japanese school boys. At least the ones wearing caps are. The person in the more fancifully decorated kimono is a girl. A great appetite for reading matter is dominating the youth of Japan in the present generation, and when the boys pass a periodical stand they usually stop to sample the magazines.

Japanese magazine-stall owners are good-natured and tolerant about allowing boys to browse through magazines; they have no money to buy. Missionaries connected with the Interchurch World Movement say that it is the accepted thing to let these passing boys read whole stories through, replace the magazine and go their way without paying anything, so long as they do not soil the pages.

The dealer does not throw out hints that the young book-worms asuring his wares had better buy or move along. He recognizes future-date cash customers in these kimono-clad youth with their summer-covered caps.

In fifty years Japan has risen from a country with no modern literature to a nation with 3,046 newspapers and periodicals and with 24,501 original works published in a year. In 1918 there were 566,770 copies of Christian books sold in Japan, which is the only non-Christian country that has popular libraries.

Although Japan has Protestant readers it has only five Protestant publishing houses. The Interchurch World Movement seeks, among other objectives, to strengthen and keep in touch with the literary movement in mission lands, and to give Asia literature which will adequately interpret to the Oriental the spiritual side of Christian civilization.

Valuable Fat in Alligator Pear. Among the fruits used for food, the alligator pear is remarkable for its large proportion of fat, which runs as high as 20 per cent. or about the same as that of common cream, states an article in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

It has been found that the human system assimilates this fat very readily up to as great a quantity as four and a half ounces a day.

When Swallows Fly Low. It is a sign of rain when swallows fly low. When the atmosphere gets saturated with moisture all insects make for shelter and come to earth. As the swallows hawk for insects on the wing it naturally flies low in search of his prey.

5,000 ATTEND
FARMERS' PICNIC

country and we are going to make it still better. Last year we appropriated five million dollars for it, but it was money well invested. And know and you know what the state is doing in the way of agricultural education at the State Normal School at New Paltz.

Farmers Not Faddists.

"Everybody who sees anything which he believes to be wrong tries to have it corrected by the state, and every law that is passed by the legislature costs money. Unless we double every ten years in the future as we have done in the past, you have got to see that you don't bring pressure to bear on the legislature to pass every day originating with people with more time than brains."

The common sense of the world which is not stirred by every passing fad belongs in the country districts. You stick to what you know is right and sensible because you have common sense. You don't go after every fad and every proposed cure because somebody says so. Our personal liberty is invaded more and more each year by these faddists. We can't make people good by law and we can't cure every evil by law.

"Don't think and say of your legislators that they're going to pass a lot of fool laws anyway, so what's the use of talking to them. They are your legislators. Every cent of the appropriations they make must be collected by a direct tax on you and they know it and you know it. You hold the purse strings. Of course, if you keep on insisting, they'll keep on spending money, because, after all, it's lots of fun to be spending other people's money."

Breeds for Utility.

"I am raising Guernseys. Last year I was at Delhi with Senator Walton and I was amazed to learn that in that important dairy and agricultural community people were buying cows and selling them; they were not breeding. If we are going to get ahead in this agricultural business, it will be only by improving our agricultural methods and improving our stock, and the only way we can improve our stock is by breeding. I hope the time is coming when this will be known as the breeders' state, where we shall breed not for exhibition purposes at county and state fairs, but for practical purposes."

"It is all wrong, in my opinion, for fairs to give prizes the way they do, and I believe the time must come when prizes will be awarded for utility instead of appearance. I noticed the other day that they are holding egg-laying contests in certain places, and that is one of the most sensible things I have heard of in a long time."

You can do a lot in this way and it is for you to see that the money that is raised by taxes goes for the benefit of all the people. If you will pay attention to what is going on—don't take the word of everybody, but investigate and think for yourself—you can help your legislators to be real legislators, and your governor to be a real governor."

At the close of Senator Sage's speech, Judge Clearwater proposed three cheers for the senator and led the cheering, which the crowd gave heartily.

Kilpatrick Tells How.

Bruce Kilpatrick, treasurer of the Dairyman's League, was next introduced by Mr. Eppes, and said he was delighted at the chance to speak from the same platform with a legislator who understood the farmers' viewpoint. He felt at home among an Ulster county crowd because he lived in the adjoining county of Delaware.

There farmers were compelled to farm on both sides. To illustrate that, he told the story of a Delaware county farmer who was leading a cow to the barn one winter day when the cow slipped and slid down a hill. The farmer followed and as he was leading the cow from the neighbor's farm was accosted by the owner of that farm who asked what he was doing. "One of our cows fell off the farm and landed on your farm," he explained.

Since the organization of the Dairyman's League, said Mr. Kilpatrick, the farmers had an uphill fight, but they were fighting and what was more important, they were gaining. At every contract period, the league had to fight for its price, and it also had its fights in the legislature.

"You may have heard," said Mr. Kilpatrick, "that we have to take the dealers' price, but don't you believe it. There always has been a difference and a big difference between the price they offered us and what we got. Sometimes we have come down a little on our price, but we have been getting substantially what we asked for."

After the delegate meeting at Ulster in 1919, he said, it was voted to form the Dairyman's League Cooperative Association. Some milk already had been marketed through the cooperative department of the league, but men who had a market for their products were not so anxious to supply milk to the association. But some asked to be taken in the association and they were.

Last year market conditions were very good, but last spring exporting stopped and the market became bad. From April until the present, it had been impossible to get all the sugar needed for condensing without first depositing a certified check three days in advance for part of the amount of sugar allotted to that particular section.

At Arkville there had been a creamery which became tied up to a sales manager in New York with the result that for four months the farmers were not paid for their milk. A survey of the plant was made by the speaker and Mr. Hovey and the creamery people were told they were facing bankruptcy. They simply laughed and said they knew their own business. But the survey had proved correct, and this year the cooperative plan was put in force. For four months the farmers had received nothing for their milk, but when the cooperative plan was put in effect they raised $80,000, overhauling the amount needed, just as Ulster county did recently. Other creameries were practically bankrupt when the association came in.

The only way to make the cooperative plan successful is to pull all the milk from the entire territory and that is the solution of the problem. This does away with trouble, takes care of the surplus and the product can be sold to the dealers at a profit.

Ulster county had raised $110,000 and in coming in the association it was coming in as an asset. It was necessary to have capital so as to go out in the market and buy sugar and when this is done it will not be necessary to hold the milk, or take a loss. It is working capital that is needed. If it had not been for the Dairyman's League, fifty per cent of the farmers would have gone out of business in the past six years. The same spirit was behind the league now that was behind it in 1916, and the growth proved it. The only message he had for the farmers of the county was: Be loyal to your organization, and by so doing, you will be loyal to yourselves and your families.

Mr. Kilpatrick also received applause at the close of his speech.

The Baseball Game.

The baseball game was won by the team of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, which defeated the team of the Orange County Farm Bureau by a score of 5 to 2, thereby getting satisfaction for the defeat recently given in Orange county.

Kingston took two runs in the first inning, which were made by George Barley and George Davis, and four in the third inning, which were made by Lester Davis, Ed Doremus, Charles Hagbruck and George Barley.

Orange county scored one run in the second inning, Gerow, and one in the eighth, by Taylor. Doremus pitched for the first and second innings, for Ulster, and Hagbruck pitched the remainder of the game. Gerow pitched the entire game for Orange. In the eighth, Warren of Ulster was replaced in right field by Herring.

The Orange county team was coached by C. C. Shons of Washington, who played right field. Mr. Shons is a well known apple dealer and annually handles between fifty and seventy-five thousand barrels. He is about seventy years of age but is much more active than most men of half his age.

The lineup of the teams was as follows:

Orange—Hogan, third base; Taylor, first base; Flannery, catcher; Roe, left field; Gerow, pitcher; Wayne, short stop; Salerno, center field; Shons, right field; Tuttle, second base.

Strike-outs—Doremus, 5; Hagbruck, 2; Gerow, 3.

Two-base hits—Hagbruck, 2; Wayne, 1; Lester Davis, 1; Doremus, 1.

Picnic Notes.

The tractor demonstration was one of the most interesting features and received as much attention from the women as from the men. The Fordson tractor was in charge of Mr. Payne, who was assisted by Mr. Alice. Both are expert demonstrators and have demonstrated the capabilities of the tractor in many parts of the county.
